

beacon communications and Publicis Healthcare Communications Group Partner to Form beacon healthcare

Specialty group to drive new business development in the healthcare industry beacon communications k.k. (main office: Shinagawa-ku, Tokyo, president: Nicolas Menat, “beacon” hereinafter) and Publicis Healthcare Communications Group (PHCG) have announced the recent launch of beacon healthcare. Part of the PHCG network, beacon healthcare’s highly targeted healthcare knowledge and expertise will provide clients account management, strategic planning, promotion, digital, and creative, and is expected to drive business development in the sector.

beacon healthcare’s offering ranges from developing pharmaceutical implementation strategies, including market analysis, to the planning and implementation of communication strategies for healthcare professionals, patients, and the general public. Representing a one-stop, comprehensive service enables the agency to support clients’ marketing activities more effectively and efficiently.

Nicolas Menat, president of beacon said, “With an increasingly ageing Japanese society, the healthcare industry is one of the few growth areas with great business opportunities for our agency. We initiated the partnership with Publicis Healthcare Communications Group to combine their expertise and best practices coming from the West, and our team of experts with in-depth local market understanding.”

Yuta Kaneko, managing director of beacon healthcare expressed his enthusiasm by saying, “beacon healthcare is a group highly specialized in the healthcare category, especially in pharmaceutical marketing. As a member of PHCG, we want to breathe new life into Japanese healthcare marketing by leveraging our global network and working closely with beacon communications.”

The addition of beacon healthcare to the Japanese PHCG agency portfolio is part of a major strategic push to further develop our healthcare offering in the Asia-Pacific region.

“Japan is an extremely important market for Publicis Healthcare Communications Group,” said Ash Kuchel, president of PHCG Asia Pacific. “Our partnership with beacon communications proposes a cutting-edge healthcare communications offering; bringing best practices, local talent and the latest in innovative strategies to a well-established healthcare market. It’s what the healthcare industry has been asking for and we have the business model to satisfy their needs.”
